Made Him Ridiculous.

A good story of General Sheridan was told me the other day by a Mexican gentleman, an intimate friend of the great northern soldier in his lifetime.

One day, calling on the commander of the army at his office in Washington, he found him at his desk, his feet incased in slippers and his shoes democratically placed on top of the desk. While the general was apparently absorbed in some writing, the Mexican gentleman, who thought some servant had left the warrior's shoes in the wrong place, took his case and gently deposited the shoes on the floor.

The next day the Mexican gentleman called again on Sheridan and found him at his desk, shoes on top as before. The polite resident of the tropics began once more removing the shoes to the floor when all at once Sheridan roared out:

"Don't you do that again, sir! You make me ridiculous, sir!"

"I beg your pardon, general, but how have I made you ridiculous?"

"Why, sir," said Sheridan, still annoyed, "yesterday, sir, I went out to walk after you had called on me. I was nearing the White House when I noticed a gentleman looking at me intently.

Soon he addressed me, saying, 'Excuse me, general, but aren't you afraid of catching cold?' 'Why, sir, no, not that I know of; what's the matter, sir?"

"Well," said the gentleman, "it is very damp and you are going about in your slippers!" I tell you, sir," said Sheridan, addressing his Mexican friend, "you made me ridiculous. It is my habit, sir, to put my shoes on my desk where I cannot fail to see them, so I may not forget to put them on, and, confound it, sir, you come around here with your notions of propriety and send me around town in my slippers, sir!"—Boston Herald.

Butterflies That Bathe.

It is commonly thought that a butterfly dreads the water as a fine lady dreads run, but evidently this is not true in Australia. The case of an Australian butterfly deliberately entering the water to take a bath is recorded by M. G.

Lyell, Jr. He saw it alight close to the water, into which it backed until the whole of the body and the lower part of the hind legs were submerged, the two fore legs alone retaining their hold on the dry land. After remaining in this position for something like half a minute it flew away apparently refreshed.

Mr. Lyell says: "During the morning

I noticed a number doing the same thing. In one instance no less than four were to be seen within a space of not more than three yards, and, to make sure that I was not deceived, I captured several as they rose from the water, and found in each case the body and lower edge of the hind wings quite wet. While in the water the fluttering of the wings, so noticeable at other times, was suspended, and so intent were the butterflies in the enjoyment of the cold bath that they could hardly move, even when actually touched by the net.

"Apparently the heat of the weather drove them down to the water, as immediately upon emerging they flew up again to the hillside. Butterflies are often seen apparently sucking in the moisture around the edge of the pools; but they have never before been seen actually to enter the water."—Victoria Naturalist.

A Disgusted Cat

A Lewiston young man promised to feed the cats while his mother and sisters went on a vacation. He promised to give them fish, properly prepared, and milk. He fed them on milk, but forgot the fish. Every day the old cat walked up to the milk until it got to be a case of forty quails in forty days, and she finally rebelled. One day the young man flung out a smoked herring, and that finished the job. The cat took her two kittens and has gone to live with the minister in the next street.—Lewist-

A Good Programme Well Rendered—Lecture on Gold, Silver and Progress by Senator Stewart—A Large and Appreciative Audience.

Last night marked an important era in the entertainment and amusement line in Reno. A purely literary enterprise was launched forth with every prospect of success.

The programme was most excellent.
Every person who took part in the entertainment has more than a local reputation.
In the language of the stage all were stars.
Hardly a number on the programme but would of itself attract an audience.

Mr. C. A. Norcross, the manager of the Lyceum, opened the meeting with a few appropriate remarks, stating the object and outlining its future work.

The orchestra followed with a choice selection which was highly appreciated by the audience. Miss Cloy Booton followed with a vocal solo. Miss Booton has a voice full of pathos and the selection was rendered with exquisite sweetness.

"SILVER, GOLD AND PROGRESS."

Hon. W. M. Stewart, who kindly accepted the invitation of the Lyceum management to deliver a lecture at its opening, was introduced to the audience by the President, S. A. Jones, with a few well chosen remarks and was greeted with applause. The Senator never spoke in a flour vein, and the simple manner in which he elucidated the subject of money put the question in a new light. He spoke very earnestly and as he stood there, the personification of earnestness, denouncing the crime of '73, every Nevada felt proud of his Senator, who is the world's acknowledged champion of the white metal. He was interrupted by frequent applause. He appeared none the worse for the shaking up he received on the train derailed by the would be murderers near Calfax, who derailed the passenger train. His subject was "Silver, Gold and Progress," and the following is a synopsis of his address:

"The two great inventions of man, without which civilization could not exist, are language and money. Both are purely artificial, and each is an absolute necessity in any form of civilization. Neither is of the slightest use in isolation. There must be somebody to whom ideas may be communicated before either written or spoken language can be useful. A single individual on a remote island has no use for money, but in society it is indispensable.
It is quite as important in civilized life for each individual to be supplied with commodities produced by others as it is for him to communicate his own thoughts and receive from them the knowledge they possess. In order to change commodities to any considerable extent it is essential to have some

MEANS OF MEASURING THEIR RELATIVE VALUE.

Money was invented for that purpose.
Some form of money has been used in all ages by barbarians as well as civilized societies. So far as records have extended every tribe of savages, however degraded, have invented some material to measure the value of their possessions. In North America the Indians use wampum. The Chinese in the earlier ages used the mulberry leaves upon which were stamped various characters and devices. Some tribes of Indians use shells, others the skins of animals, the early Virginians used tobacco. It would be impossible in any one evening's discourse, if we knew all, to give a description of the various devices that have been adopted as measures of value. Most of the metals have been employed at various times for use as money.
But the more civilized people from prehistoric times have used silver, and for more than 3,000 years gold has been used to supplement silver. Gold and silver are the only metals which have been discovered that could not be produced in excessive quantities, consequently they have been adhered to from time immemorial, with the exception of the recent fraud which is known to you all as the Demonetization of Silver.

THE MEASURE OF PROPERTY VALUE.

I stated that money was used to measure the value of property, to enable each member of the community to enjoy the fruits of the labor of all by exchanging his own productions or acquisitions for the productions or acquisitions of others. In order to fully appreciate the functions which money performs, it is necessary to understand the meaning of the term value. Value and utility are very distinct in their meaning, but are frequently confounded. Utility depends upon quality; value upon the estimation of man. There is no such thing as "intrinsic value." Value is not in the thing but in the mind. Many things which are most useful and some which are absolutely essential to human life, have no value. The light of day, the heat of the sun, the air we breathe, are all essential to animal life; still they have no value. Some things are valuable in one place and not in another. A person with a dipper in his hand, riding in a skiff on Lake Superior would pay nothing for a drink of water; but if he were placed upon the Mojave Desert, on foot, 20 miles from a station on a hot day, he would give all of his possessions for a pint of the precious fluid.

WHAT DETERMINES VALUE.

What then are the conditions which determine value? They are manifestly limitation of quantity and a desire to possess.
If either is wanting the article has no value.
If the supply is unlimited and each individual can acquire all he desires of any particular commodity, then without money or price, such commodity or thing has no commercial value. It will fetch nothing in the market. If nobody wants a commodity, no matter what its qualities are, it cannot be sold, consequently it has no value.
Limitation of quantity and a desire to possess are ordinarily described by the terms supply and demand. When there is any limitation of quantity, however slight, and there is a desire to possess, the thing will have some value. The extent of that value must depend upon the supply and demand.
Inasmuch as all values are measured in money, the demand for money is equal to the aggregate demand for all things, which possesses value by being limited in quantity.
Whether the amount of money in the world be large or small it must measure all other values and in turn, all other values measure the value of money. Money is no more useful for food, or clothing than a yard stick or a pair of scales. It is simply a measure. Inasmuch as the quantity of money in existence must measure all things, the aggregate value of all things must depend upon the quantity of money by which it is measured. If the quantity of money in the world were doubled, the price of property would be increased about 100 per cent. Each dollar would have one half of its purchasing power. If the money of the world were reduced one-half, the aggregate price of property would necessarily decline about 50 per cent.

WHAT THE VALUE OF MONEY DEPENDS ON.

The value of money as such does not depend upon the material of which it is made, but upon the number of units or dollars in circulation. Dollars are made dear as compared with property, by reducing their number, and they are made cheap by increasing their number. This principle is well understood when applied to commodities. Every housewife who goes to market understands that. When eggs, chickens, butter or anything else she requires to buy, is scarce, it will be dear, and when it is plenty, it will be cheap. But the multitude do not understand that the same principle applies to money. Ignorance of this fact has enabled the dealers in money throughout all the ages to manipulate legislation affecting the quantity of money and by that means to enhance or depreciate its value.

If the volume or supply of money could always be the same, when compared with the demand, the general range of prices would remain comparatively stationary and the debtor would be able to pay in the same money as he borrowed. The investor in property and enterprise would receive legitimate profit on his investment. A man who goes in debt sells money short; that is, he agrees to deliver something at a future time which he does not now possess.
If on the day of payment the number of dollars in circulation is diminished and the value of each dollar enhanced, he is injured. It requires more property or services to procure the same amount of money that it did when the debt was contracted.
If on the contrary, after the debt is contracted, a large addition is made to the dollars in circulation, he can pay his debt in less money and services than would have been required to obtain the money at the time the debt was contracted. In early times when law was weak and confidence wanting, something like gold and silver appeared to be a necessity for us as money.
Up to the present time no substitute has been devised upon which a general assent or agreement could be obtained. The most valuable function obtained by the precious metals is limitation of the quantity of money. As before stated, money would have no value without a limitation of value.
If all the rock were gold, coined gold could not be used as money. The fact that too much of either gold or silver or of both combined for use as money has never been procured is a sure guarantee that the world will not have too much money by the unlimited use of both precious metals. The trouble has been from the beginning that there has not been an adequate supply.

MONEY AND PROGRESS.

When the supply has been largest, civilization has advanced; when the supply of the precious metals has failed, civilization has decayed. When the Pharois built the pyramids, the mines of Nubia were prolific; when Solomon built the temple the gold of Ophir was abundant; when the Phoenicians were the wealthiest and most prosperous nation of the world they gathered gold and silver from the mines of Asia and all the countries bordering on the Mediterranean; when Athens was a university of literature, science and philosophy, the Greeks were reaping a rich harvest of gold and silver from the rivers and mountains of Thrac; when the Legions of Rome were victorious in Europe, Asia and Africa the civilization of each of these nations decayed, and a reign of barbarism ensued after the exhaustion of the mines from which they obtained their money. The cessation of mining for a period of fourteen hundred years reduced the Roman Empire to feudal slavery. Poverty robbed the proud Romans of their ancient valor and independence, and blotted out their language and literature, except what was hidden away in the monasteries, and destroyed the energy, courage and enterprise of the people. No ray of light dawned upon the dark ages until the discovery of gold and silver in Mexico and South America. A struggle then commenced for civil and religious liberty, which has resulted in the civilization of the nineteenth century, which we now enjoy. No people deprived of money have ever yet been able to preserve their liberties. Slavery follows poverty with as much certainty as night follows day. For three hundred years after the discovery of America the supply of gold and silver from the mines of the world was sufficient to produce the onward march of civilization. During all that time there was no serious money famine from failure of production of the mines. At the commencement of this century a change took place. The Spanish-American wars cut off the supply of gold and silver. From 1810 to 1840 the annual production of the mines of the world of both gold and silver did not exceed $3,000,000. From 1840 to 1850 gold mining in Russia revived and the annual production arose to about $40,000,000. The discovery of gold in California in 1848 and in Australia two years later soon increased the annual product of the precious metals to $100,000,000.

From that time until now the aggregate product of the two metals has gradually increased until it has reached about $250,000,000 per annum. Such a supply has been reasonably sufficient to supply the world with a safe basis for a circulating medium. It has about kept pace with the increase of population and business. There is no reason, but the crime of man, why this should not be a season of unexampled prosperity. From 1810 to 1850 the value of money increased about 100 per cent., and the price of commodities declined full 50 per cent. This was the result of the money famine occasioned by the Spanish-American wars. From 1850 to 1875 the average price of commodities increased more than 33 1/3 per cent. The civilized world advanced in that 25 years more in wealth, learning, invention, and labor-saving machines than had been accomplished in any century which had preceded it.

THE TRICKERY OF CAPITAL.

As soon as the civilized world was relieved from the money famine by the great discoveries of California and Australia, an attempt was made by the possessors of fixed capital to enhance the value of money and bonds by the rejection of gold and the limitation of the world's money by silver alone. Failing in that the European dealers in bonds and money induced the Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Senate of the United States to secure the passage of a law unknown to the Senators present whereby the United States was made to take the lead in the scheme to demonetize silver and reduce the money of the world to gold alone. Germany immediately followed the lead of the United States, and two years thereafter a sufficient pressure was brought upon France and the Latin Union to close the mints to silver. There was at that time no less than 7,500,000,000 of gold and silver coined in the world suitable for reserves in banks and Government vaults, and upon which rested the paper circulation, credit and business of the world. Since that time there has been no material increase of gold. The entire product has been observed to keep up good the stock of gold on hand and for non-monetary purposes.

The Director of the Mint informs us that there are only 3,727,000,000 of gold coin in the world—less than one-half the amount of coin recognized by the commercial world as real money suitable for reserves, that there was 18 years ago.
The average price of commodities, including labor, has declined full 50 per cent. in the last 18 years. Each dollar is required to measure more than twice as much property and services as it did 18 years ago.
The dollar has been made twice as long.
In other words, its purchasing power has been increased, while the price of property has been reduced about one-half. I declare that it was a crime for the exploiters of money by the trickery of legislation to double the value of their own property and to reduce the value of all other property in like proportion."

The vocal solo by Mrs. G. H. Taylor was finely rendered, and was greeted with hearty applause.

Professor Hoskins brought the house down with a storm of applause by his cornet solo, and was enthusiastically recalled.
He is said to be one of the best cornet soloists on the coast, and Reno has a fine addition to her musical talent in Professor Hoskins.

While Miss Mabel Booton delivered her recitation the drop of a pin could be heard, so closely did she hold the audience. The simplicity of her attire, the tragic subject and the sweet face held the audience spell bound.

The programme was concluded with a vocal duet by Mrs. B. F. Layton and Mrs.
W. S. Bender. Their appearance was the signal for a hearty applause, and when they had finished they were applauded to the echo. The applause was long, loud and continuous, and the audience would not be satisfied until they had returned and rendered another charming selection.

The opening evening was a decided success, and the Reno public can well afford to support a movement so popular and elevating. The manager, O. A. Norcross, deserves great credit for the way in which he has conducted the movement, and under the supervision of so scholarly a young man the public may rest assured that each succeeding programme will be as select as that of the last.

BREVITIES.]

Jas. Mayberry left last night for Truckee.
N. J. Foxwell and Geo. Jamison of Verdi are in Reno.

G. W. Sawyer and S. Arnstein of Wadsworth are in town.

The Executive Committee of the State Board of Agriculture will meet this afternoon.

General J. R. Kittrell left last night for Modesto, where he goes on professional business.

J. E. Jones arrived last evening from Modoc county, where he has been for the past month.

Robert Briggs, ex-Senator from White Pine county, died in San Francisco last Wednesday.

Don't forget the balloon ascension and double parachute jump at Steamboat Springs to-morrow.

All the hay presses in the country are engaged and R. W. Parry had to order one from Sierra Valley.

Mrs. Frank Lewis returned yesterday morning from California where she has been visiting friends for several weeks.

Miss J. R. Patton and party, of San Francisco passed through Reno night before last, returning home from Europe.

The thanks of the JOURNAL are due and are hereby tendered to the W. C. T. U. for the delicious repast furnished last night.

Three cars of horses, unloaded here to feed and rest, were forwarded to San Francisco yesterday and another car-load goes to-day.

The Knights of Honor have already commenced preparations for their annual masquerade ball to be given at the Pavilion Thanksgiving night.

The Pastime Tennis Club is making extensive preparations for their dance this evening. The hall is being beautifully decorated for the occasion.

Billy Blackmore, the veteran stage driver, who twenty years ago drove the stage between Carson and Reno, leaves this evening for Calistoga, Cal.

S. L. Langhorne offers a liberal reward for the recovery of a black mare which was stolen from the stable of J. J. Quinn a few nights ago. See advertisement.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Fulton and children left yesterday for the East. Mr. Fulton will attend the Irrigation Congress at Omaha, after which he will visit his old home in Ohio.

The Brotherhood of Railway Station Foremen, and the Order of Railway Trackmen, have amalgamated, and the name of the association will henceforth be "The International Brotherhood of Railway Track Foremen."

The Commissioners sent by the Government to negotiate with the Indians for a part of the Pyramid Reservation held a powwow with the Putes at the Riverside yesterday. Many of the leading Indians attended, and there was a "heap talk."

Storey county's new Court-House was built fifteen years ago and for the first time in its history, the enterprise says, it had no occupant night before last but Deputy Sheriff Blackley. This indicates that times are duller on the Comstock than for many years.

Nelson Ahlberg and Adolph Anderson were instantly killed near Incline last Thursday by a tree which they were felling falling upon them. The bodies will be brought here for interment. Ahlberg has a sister residing at the French Hotel and Anderson has a brother living at Boca.

Commissioner Hymers, District Attorney Julian and County Assessor Fletcher went to Carson yesterday to appear before the State Board of Assessors and Equalization in behalf of the taxpayers. They protested against the horizontal raise, and no doubt convinced the Board that it is unjust and ought to be rescinded.

D. W. Wallis arrived here yesterday with twenty-one cars of cattle, 200 head of which he will feed here and the rest he will ship to California. Yesterday five car-loads of cattle were shipped to Hayes & Co., Oakland, and 300 head from the eastern part of the State were shipped to Horn & Chapman, San Francisco.

An Unknown El Dorado.
How many Americans have heard of the state of Guerrero? It is one of the richest mining regions of Mexico, and it is said that its soil is a crust of silver and gold. Here the first mines were worked by the Spaniards, and the country contains hundreds of abandoned mines today. It lies on the Pacific, and it is only partially known. It had one mine which produced 495,000 ounces of silver in a few months, and it is surrounded by great states which are now being for the first time carefully investigated.
Oaxaca, just below it, is now being penetrated by the Mexican Southern railroad, and this will bring a vast gold bearing region into the market. The state is one in which President Diaz was born, and it is the one which will be on the Tehuantepec ship railway, it is ever completed. It has vast areas of good land, and I know a half dozen American capitalists who expect to make fortunes out of the coal fields which they say have been discovered in it.
Coal brings about twenty-six dollars a ton in City of Mexico, and there are said to be fine iron deposits in near proximity to these coal fields. The climate of all this part of Mexico is very fine, and the capitalists who would buy some of the agricultural lands along this route would make a fortune. The public lands are worth from twenty to forty-five cents an acre, and they will raise coffee and sugar and all kinds of grains.
This new railroad will, and does already, tap the mining regions of the state of Puebla, which contain both silver and gold, and one of the finest specimens of gold ever brought into Mexico City was shown to an American business man there by an Indian from this state about a month ago. It was a nugget of solid gold as big as your fist. The American entered into a contract with the man for the development of the region where it was found, and he traveled with him on horseback for several days, when the Indian told him that he had forgotten the place. This was of course a lie.—Cor. St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Bishop of Derry.
The eloquent bishop of Derry has, I hear, accepted an invitation from the trustees of Columbia college to deliver in New York City during Lent, 1892, a course of lectures on "The Evidences of Christianity." Remembering that the right reverend prelate is nearing his seventieth year, it is not surprising, in his letter to the bishop of New York accepting the invitation, to find him saying that his decision required a good deal of consideration, but he adds that it is a source of pleasure to him to think of meeting his lordship "and many venerable chiefs of the great and living branch of Christ's holy Catholic church across the ocean."
The bishop, by birth an Irishman, was graduated at Oxford, where he won many distinctions, and he was Bampton lecturer in 1876. As a preacher he stands without doubt in the first rank, and his lectures are likely to find as wide a circle of readers here as on the other side of the ocean. Bishop Alexander was a most determined opponent of the prayer-book revision undertaken by the synod of his church, and his action in walking out of the synod hall after a solemn protest against the proceedings will not soon be forgotten.—Manchester Guardian

Care in Choosing Drinking Water.
More and more as a knowledge of hygiene is spread will people be careful as to the water they drink, for an impure article will as surely injure as impure food. A case in point is just reported of two deaths and twenty-four cases of disease from drinking the water of an old well in Milwaukee.
For a long time the well has furnished the water for half a dozen families in the neighborhood. About all the members this summer partaking of the well water became ill, and their ailment soon developed into typhoid fever. Near by is a foul marsh, the water from which is supposed to have worked itself into the well and thus contaminated it, causing these deaths and all the illness. Probably the cost of the doctors' bills and other expenses, together with the loss of time, have been many hundreds of dollars, or quite enough to have brought clear water from some other source.—Herald of Health.

Didn't Risk Anything.
Unlimited assurance is possessed by a young man from Tennessee, who lately sought admission to West Point, and thus closed his application to the superintendent: "I want only to study military tactics. I want to stay three years. I want forty dollars per month. At the end of the term I want a position over some army of the United States. I want you to send me a round ticket there and back. I think I am both physically and mentally qualified to fill the position. I will not be out anything, but I want the position. Please answer this."—Yankee Blade.

The Eiffel Tower in a Graveyard.
A good grocer of Damery, in the department of the Marne, has astonished his fellow townsmen by erecting in the local cemetery a family mausoleum of out stone shaped like the Eiffel tower. This is certainly the first time the tower built for the exhibition has been copied for a churchyard monument.—Pall Mall Gazette

Duels at Bonn.
Visitors to Bonn are, I hear, aghast at the untoward consequences of the German emperor's dueling speech. So many barbaric encounters have taken place during the last three months that nearly every student one comes across has his face seamed and gashed in the most unsightly manner.—London World

A Kodak Gem.
An amateur photographer caught a young lady who had been eating ice cream over at the Polard camp ground Sunday in the act of lifting the well nigh empty saucer to her lips and draining the last drop of the melted cream which had cost her a very young man a dime.—Auburn (Mass.) Gazette
